

I am tired of the major media conglomerates putting out there rhetoric and trying to monopolize what goes out of the airwaves. Instead of improving there products that goes out to various types of people, they like to stay lazy and content and not increase improvement in there product. Suddenly something as new as satellite radio comes out and gives me a great variety of options, plus something as basic as weather and traffic these big babies freak out. Hey here is an idea try to compete and make people listen to your product. It is so funny that all these owners who are conservative are so opposed of too much government and are for free enterprise until it effects them then they start running to there mommy the FCC. Hipocrisy can only take you so far.
